

9 Fun Resources for Music and Art

As you try to find new ways for your family to engage artistically and musically, here are a few resources you might consider adding to your home.

Natural History: The Ultimate Visual Guide to Everything on Earth

This is a beautiful Resource to draw or paint from or to just stare in wonder at. My kids love to look through it and it's so huge they always find something new.

Who sang the First Song? and Don't Forget to Remember By Ellie Holcomb and Kayla Harren

Ellie Holcomb also has two children's albums called Sing. They are worth checking out as you find opportunities to enjoy music together.

Several books by Sally Lloyd Jones including The Jesus Storybook Bible, Found, and Thoughts to Make Your Heart Sing.

Ms. Jones has been a staple in our home for a long time. Both Thoughts to Make Your Heart Sing and The Jesus Storybook Bible provide beautiful illustrations by Jago that encourage wonder and imagination and are great springboards for artistic pursuits.

Most major museums have created virtual experiences to enjoy their exhibits. Here are a few to check out:

- Museum of Modern Art
- Smithsonian Museum of American Art
- Cooper-Hewitt Smithsonian Design Museum
- The Louvre

Consider going to your favorite museums around the world and seeing what you can view online! Many even have online field trips specifically tailored to kids.

Rain for Roots album series has beautiful music created for kids.

A fun art opportunity each day called "Doodles with Mo" from popular children's book author, Mo Willems.

This has been a fantastic opportunity to learn for all of us at home.
